Subject: BP spill update

Superfund reports they're finished at BP Whiting. Here's what we propose to post on the web page today:

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Coast Guard were on site today to examine the shoreline near an oil spill into Lake Michigan that BP reported on March 24. They found no evidence of oil on the beach or in the water. The cleanup is complete. EPA and the Coast Guard will perform a follow up inspection of the lake and shoreline this summer.
